It is reported that bears are so numerous in Center county that they are a great annoyance to the farmers. It is said they carry off pigs, sheep and calves and show signs of fight if molested. The nimrods who are looking for a good place for bear should lie away to Center county and help the farmers kill the impudent rascals that have invaded that section.

Starved to Death.

How many have used the expression "the tune the old cow died on," without any definite idea of its origin? It seems to have come to us from over the seas. It arose out of an old song:

There was an old man and he had an old cow,
And he had nothing to give her,
So he took out his fiddle and played her a tune;
"Consider, good cow, consider;
This is no time of year for the grass to grow—
Consider, good cow, consider."

Council and Lock-up.

Work has been commenced on the foundation for a council chamber, lock-up and hose room in the West Reynoldsville borough. The building, which will be erected on Broad street, near the plating mill, will be 20 x 40, two stories high. The first floor will be used for a lock-up, two cells, and hose room, and the second story will be fitted up for a place where the borough "dads" can meet to wrestle with the important problems that fall into the hands of a town council.

"Happy Jack."

John Young, known as "Happy Jack," was agreeably surprised when he returned home about nine o'clock last Thursday evening and found his house full of friends. His surprise reached an unspeakable point when summoned to stand before his fellow countrymen, and a few yankees present, and was given a new suit of clothes, overcoat shoes and hat. For once in his life "Happy Jack" was almost speechless. An excellent supper was served by the ladies and the evening was pleasantly spent singing.

Old Time Shingles.

During the heavy storm that passed over this section of the country last Wednesday morning, Joseph Smith's barn in Beechwoods was struck by lightning and burned down. The barn was filled with hay, straw, oats, wheat, &c., which was all burned, also harness, hay rake and other farm implements. The barn, which was erected sixty-five years ago, was built of logs and was still covered by the same roof that was put on it when first built. The shingles were pine. They don't put shingle roofs on to-day that will do service for sixty-five years.

Joined in with Calithumpians.

Last Friday Chas. Benson, a brakeman on the R. & F. C. R'y, was married to Miss Sarah Kaylor at Falls Creek. Monday evening a number of railroad men, and others, formed a calithumpian band and repaired to the residence of the benedict's father, in West Reynoldsville, where the happy couple were stopping. While a delightful (?) selection was being rendered by the calithumpians a search was made for the groom, who had disappeared. He was found in the crowd with a horn making as much noise as any of the party. Charles enjoyed the serenade.

Insurance Map.

Insurance companies, as a rule, have a map of every town where they take risks, but up to the present time Reynoldsville has been an exception. Lewis C. Hoover, of New York, is now in town taking a map of Reynoldsville for the various companies interested here. New maps are supposed to be made every five years. The object of the map is that the companies may know where the property is located that their agents write risks for and to avoid taking too many risks close together. Mr. Hoover will go from Reynoldsville to Brookville and make a new map of that town.

Up to the Times.

New Bethlehem is not a very large town but the citizens are progressive and if the enterprise continues that has been manifested there in the past few years, it is destined to become quite a town. The town has an excellent sewerage, water works, natural gas, fine dwellings, a school building that is a palace compared to the Reynoldsville educational edifice, and now there is good prospects of having all the houses numbered in that town. In country towns numbering places is a small matter so far as finding places is concerned, but it gives the town a better impression to the outside world to have the street and number on your letters.

Tame Affair.

It is seldom THE STAR comments on the shows that appear in the opera house, because the editor does not go to see the performances. The advance agents come to town and blow up their show to the manager of the opera house, and have a sheet of newspaper comments which is handed the papers to get clippings from; the people are attracted by the glaring posters, read the circulars and press notices, and thus the opera house manager, papers and people are led to believe the show is all it is claimed to be until the performance has been given. "His Nibs," which appeared here on the 18th inst., was none to good, but "The Detective," so we have been informed, was tinged with rankness, or in other words, was no good. The Dutchman, Irishman and one lady, while not up to the highest standard, would pass, but the remainder of the company were miserable failures, either because they lacked talent or practice. The melodrama which was claimed to be from real life, was a good one, but it was produced in a very tame style.

Over a Bridge.

Dr. S. Reynolds escaped serious injury by jumping from his cart last Saturday night and his horse miraculously escaped without any broken bones. Doctor had been out to McMillen's mill on Saturday evening and was returning home about eight o'clock. Just as he was nearing the east end of the bridge that spans Trout run, at the old Swartz mill site, he heard a buggy coming in the opposite direction and he called to the driver to stop, but the horse trotted on. Doctor saw there was going to be trouble and he stopped his horse. The wheels of the buggy caught the cart and took horse and cart halfway back over the bridge again where the horse and cart went over into the run, some ten feet distance. Dr. saved himself from a cold bath by jumping out of the cart. Henry North, the man who caused the trouble, did not stop, to see what damage he had done, but continued on his way home. Several men who were coming to town, happened to be nearby when the accident occurred and they got Doctor's horse and cart out of the run. They found the horse lying in about a foot and a half of water. The horse was cut in one or two places and had its legs badly skinned. The cart escaped without much damage. It might have resulted seriously for Dr. if he had not jumped when he did. There was no excuse for the mishap, for Dr. had a lantern with him and had given the other man warning.

Help a Little.

The Ladies Home Journal, one of the best monthly journals published to-day, is continually making liberal offers to increase the circulation of that journal. They offer a scholarship at the New England Conservatory of Music, at Boston, which includes boarding and all expenses, to the young lady who gets a certain number of new subscribers for the Journal. Miss Roberta Ayers, of this place, has decided to make the attempt to get one of the scholarships offered. It is to be hoped the young lady will meet with success. One reason is because she has ambition and vim enough to make the effort, and another reason is that every person that subscribes for the Journal will get the worth of their money. Miss Ayers got 25 subscribers on Grant street on Monday. We believe the people will be liberal with the young lady and that she will yet be a student at the Conservatory of Music in Boston. Give her your subscription.

Rev. Furbay Honored.

At the 13th annual session of Presbyterian Synod of Pennsylvania, held at Tyrone Oct. 18th to 22nd, committees were appointed to visit Presbyterian colleges, and from the Tyrone Daily Herald we clip the following, as Rev. Furbay is well known in Reynoldsville: "Committee on Western Theological Seminary, Rev. Harvey Gramme Furbay, Dr. Daniel W. Townsend, Elder Clinton B. Conway. The appointment of Rev. Mr. Furbay as chairman of the last committee is a high compliment to Tyrone's popular and successful pastor. He was graduated at that institution in 1891, and at his early day in his active ministry he is sent as chairman of the representatives of synod to examine and report upon the work at that seminary, a Gibraltar of the church."

Daniel and the Woodchucks.

The champion ground-hog hunter so far as heard from is Daniel Snyder, of Perry township. A gentleman from Punxsutawney met him the other day to whom he told that he had killed six woodchucks that day in a surprising short time. "How many have you killed this season, Mr. Snyder?" was the inquiry. "I have killed eighty-six and I am going to make it an even hundred this year," replied Daniel.—Punxsutawney News.

PROHIBITION MEETING.

Martial and Brass Bands and Red Lights Galore.

It was advertised that the Prohibitionists would hold a meeting at this place last Friday evening, but as the party has never been able to get up much enthusiasm in Reynoldsville heretofore, there was, apparently, little attention paid to it, but when the parade came up Main street from the A. V. R'y to Centennial Hall amidst red lights galore, the crowd that stood along the sidewalks was somewhat surprised. The Prescottville Cornet band headed the procession, followed by a span of white horses and carriage, the Falls Creek and Pancoast martial bands and a number of men and a host of boys. The meeting in Centennial Hall was called to order at eight o'clock by County Chairman Solomon Shaffer. The M. E. choir, which furnished the music, sang a selection and Rev. Hicks offered a short prayer. The hall was packed; a number were compelled to stand. There never has been any trouble before about getting seats at a Prohibition meeting here. After more music by the choir, Prof. H. D. Patton, of Lancaster, State Chairman of the Prohibition party, was introduced and for almost two hours he held the attention of the large audience. Mr. Patton is a good talker and he told some wholesome truths.

Homer L. Castle, of Pittsburg, Prohibition candidate for Lieutenant Governor, was to be the speaker of the evening, but business affairs detained him at home. Mr. Castle is an attorney in the "Smoky City" and two cases he is interested in came up in Supreme court on Thursday and Friday, hence he could not be here.

Murdered by Choking.

Last Thursday Chas. O. Wilson, who was candidate for sheriff in Jefferson county at the Republican primaries in 1893, and who is now living at Montplier, Indiana, passed through Reynoldsville on the 1:00 p. m. train on his way to Punxsutawney with the remains of James Young, an ex-deputy sheriff of this county, son of J. J. Young, ex-sheriff of Jefferson county, who met a violent death at Montplier on the 23rd inst. The circumstances of the case as related to THE STAR by Mr. Wilson, while the train stopped here are as follows: James Young, who had gone to Indiana about one year ago to work for Mr. Wilson, was troubled with quinsy and had a surgical operation performed on his throat. He was improving after the operation but his throat had not healed up yet and Tuesday evening he stepped into a restaurant at Montplier to get a lunch. Erastus Shields, who had served seven years in the penitentiary, was in the restaurant drunk and a few words passed between the two about a bunch of bananas and Shields, without any provocation, grabbed Young by the throat. When he let go his grip, which he did when a bystander knocked him down, Young fell to the floor and expired. Shields was immediately arrested and it was difficult for the officers to get him to jail without being lynched. James Young was well known all over Jefferson county which acquaintance he made when acting as deputy sheriff.

Railroaders are Brotherly.

"Railroad employees are perhaps the most sympathetic and brotherly of any craft or 'calling,'" said a physician yesterday. "When one of their number gets hurt nearly all of his acquaintances on the road will call to see him, and will exhibit a lively interest in his welfare. I notice this more amongst railroaders than any other craft. I presume it is on account of the danger connected with the business." Nothing so knits men together in a common bond of friendship and fellowship as to share dangers together. Indeed it has been said that if there were no death in this world love and sympathy would never have inhabited the human heart.—Punxsutawney Spirit.

We have been intimately acquainted with a large number of the employees of the A. V. R'y for many years—having spent two years as one of them—and know the above statement from a physician is correct. No class of laboring people are as sympathetic and kind to one another when an accident overtakes one of their number.

About the Itch.

When we were a boy we had the itch, along with the neighbor boys, and know all about the peculiar sensations produced by it. We didn't have the "seven-year" variety, but were satisfied to get rid of our case inside of one year. Most of the boys going to school had it, and we suppose the girls, too. We did not know of the teacher having it, but suspect now he had, and this suspicion is strengthened by what Dr. McKnight says in the Brockwayville Record: "The first time I was in Brockwayville was in the '40's. I came to get Dr. Clarke to cure me of the itch. I was living with James McCurdy's family in Beechwoods, and had contracted the disease sleeping with a school teacher who was 'boarded around.'" As school teachers "boarded around" in those days, up past 1850, they must have had the itch along with the scholars.—Brookville Democrat.
